A Very British Strike

Explaining the British Army's Strike Concept

Strike The British Army's new Strike concept has attracted an unusual amount of criticism, despite an absence of details on which to ground such comment Indeed, much of it seems based on the argument that because the Ajax Armoured Fighting Vehicle - one of the vehicles to be employed for its realisation - is somehow descended from the previous, less-than-successful Future Rapid Effects

History of British Steel

the 1970s The turnaround in British Steel's fortunes since the early years of 1980s was very substantial The heavy losses of a few years before were replaced by a pre-tax profit in 1989/90 of £733 million 1987 On 3 December 1987 the UK Government formally announced its intention to privatise the British Steel Corporation 1988

ADP Army Doctrine Primer

Yet the very mention of the word doctrine sends some into toxic shock, and claiming not to have read it is a badge of honour amongst some older officers In fact, much of our doctrine in the past has been good stuff and others have used it effectively, even if we have not To quote Erwin Rommel: The British write some of the best doctrine in the world; it is fortunate their officers do not
